2. Establishing the Problem: Situation Statement

The average daily population of the Nebraska Department of Correctional Services (NDCS) is approximately 5,880 individuals, and roughly 2,000 people are released from Nebraska prisons each year. Nationally, over 95 percent of currently incarcerated individuals will be released at some point in the future. The reentry process presents serious challenges to the reintegration of formerly incarcerated persons in the community, with the most representative studies revealing that approximately 80% are rearrested within nine years, and slightly over half return to prison on a technical parole violation or with a new conviction within five years.

Critical to a successful reentry experience are obtaining quality employment, securing a prosocial place to live, developing a community support network, getting drug treatment (as needed), and changing one's identity and negative thinking patterns. However, many formerly incarcerated individuals have difficulties obtaining and maintaining these critical elements.

3. Introduction

The Never Give Up (NGU) Transitional Living Program is a structured transitional housing program operated under the nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization, Good Turn Labor, to support formerly incarcerated individuals as they reintegrate into the community. The program provides safe, stable housing alongside employment support, dialectical behavior therapy (DBT), Intensive Outpatient Programming (IOP) for mental health and substance use treatment, life skills training, social support, and more to reduce recidivism and improve long-term outcomes.

Designed to align with the priorities of the NDCS, Nebraska Board of Parole, and Nebraska Department of Parole Supervision services, NGU is a sober, transitional, peer-support intervention program that ensures returning citizens have the resources and structure necessary to successfully transition from incarceration to independent living.

4. Program Goals and Objectives

Program Goal: To support individuals transitioning from NDCS to the community by providing a peer-led, structured, and stable living reentry program. The NGU program's overarching goal is to reduce recidivism and promote successful reintegration by fostering personal accountability, community support, and access to essential resources.

Program Objectives: Guided by a peer-driven approach, the NGU Transitional Living program creates a supportive space where individuals with lived experiences (i.e., previously incarcerated) serve as mentors, helping participants navigate challenges related to addiction, antisocial thinking patterns, employment, and prosocial and community reintegration. By offering structured support, the program seeks to empower participants to rebuild their lives and achieve long-term stability.

These goals align with the NGU Transitional Living program's logic model (Figure 1), which outlines the key inputs, activities and outputs, and outcomes of the program.

More specifically:

- Inputs: Program investments include sustained donation and financial support, buy-in from NDCS and the Nebraska Board of Parole, and strong partnerships with community organizations. Additionally, the program requires a contracted grant writer, external accounting firm, and reliable information system and data management tools to track progress and outcomes. Further, a dedicated staff team—including a team of directors, a case manager, a resident manager, peer support specialists, and a health support and counseling specialist—plays a crucial role in supporting participants.
- Outputs/Activities: The program provides a comprehensive range of services to support the successful reintegration of formerly incarcerated individuals. It includes group counseling using dialectical behavior therapy (DBT); Intensive Outpatient Program (IOP) grounded in cognitive behavioral therapy (CBT), motivational interviewing (MI), and the 12-Step approach for mental health and substance use treatment; and access to narcotics anonymous (NA) and alcoholics anonymous (AA) meetings to address underlying issues. Participants receive financial literacy and life skills training. Individual counseling is available as needed. Employment assistance is offered to all participants, as well as fun opportunities for social development. The program also encourages engagement with faith-based communities and ensures accountability through regular urinalysis screenings.
- Short-term Outcomes: As a result of dialectical behavior therapy (DBT) in group counseling, individuals develop emotional regulation skills, improve decision-making, and gain a deeper understanding of their thoughts and behaviors. Biweekly Intensive Outpatient Programming (IOP) is geared toward stabilizing participants' symptoms

(mental health, substance use, or both), developing coping skills, supporting ongoing recovery, and prevent substance abuse relapse. Attending narcotics anonymous (NA) and alcoholics anonymous (AA) meetings encourages individuals to identify as addicts, recognize the impact of substance use on their lives, and commit to a recovery-focused lifestyle. Through financial literacy education, participants gain a basic understanding of personal finances, enabling them to make more informed financial decisions and manage their money effectively. Life skills training equips them with practical abilities such as using transportation, accessing phone services, obtaining identification, and navigating Medicaid and SNAP benefits, increasing their independence and ability to function in daily life. Individual counseling provides personalized support, helping participants engage in self-reflection, address personal challenges, and develop healthier coping mechanisms. Employment assistance enables individuals to secure and maintain stable jobs, fostering financial independence and long-term success in the workforce. Social development activities and efforts to rebuild social ties allow participants to establish meaningful relationships and feel like a valued part of society. Engagement with faith-based communities provides additional emotional and social support, fostering a sense of belonging and connection to the larger society. Lastly, regular urinalysis screenings hold individuals accountable for maintaining sobriety, reinforcing their commitment to a drug- and alcohol-free lifestyle.

- Long-term Outcomes: The program aims to create lasting positive changes in the lives of formerly incarcerated individuals by reducing recidivism and supporting their successful reintegration into society. By obtaining stable, quality employment, participants gain financial independence and a sense of purpose. Securing a prosocial place to live provides stability and a safe environment that encourages personal growth. Developing a strong community support network helps individuals build meaningful relationships and maintain accountability in their recovery and reintegration journey. Accessing and completing drug treatment enables participants to maintain sobriety and improve their overall well-being. Ultimately, by changing negative thinking patterns and adopting a new, prosocial identity, individuals are empowered to break the cycle of incarceration and lead fulfilling, productive lives as engaged members of their communities.

This framework ensures that the program remains outcome-driven, measuring success through both short-term achievements (e.g., securing stable employment, rebuilding social ties, and obtaining financial literacy, etc.) and long-term impacts (e.g., reduced recidivism).

Note. Recidivism is defined as returning to prison within three years post-release

Abbreviations: IOP = Intensive Outpatient Program, NA = Narcotics Anonymous, AA = Alcoholics Anonymous, NGU = Never Give Up Transitional Living

5. Target Population

The Never Give Up Transitional Living program serves men released from prison who:

- Are approved for community supervision or parole
- Are motivated to participate in structured reentry support
- Have applied to the program and completed a phone interview and background review

Men convicted of (a) sex offense(s) are not eligible for the NGU program. This exclusion is based on several important considerations:

- Specialized Needs: Individuals with sex offense convictions typically require more intensive and specialized reentry programming that extends beyond the scope of this housing model.
- Client Safety Considerations: The shared housing environment and support services offered in this program are not designed to accommodate the unique supervision, treatment, and safety requirements for individuals with sex offense convictions/histories. In a setting where peer mentorship and community support are key, individuals with sex offenses can pose safety risks to others and vice versa, as they dynamics of this population often involve heightened concerns around vulnerability and risk.
- Community reintegration factors: Restrictions on residency and supervision conditions for individuals with sex offense convictions often require alternative housing solutions that align with their specific legal and therapeutic needs.

By maintaining these eligibility criteria, the NGU program ensures a safe and supportive environment for all participants, fostering successful reintegration into the community.

6. Screening Process

The Never Give Up Transitional Living program follows a thorough screening process to ensure that individuals admitted to the program are appropriate for its structure and services. The screening process is designed to assess each applicant's suitability for the program and to ensure their needs align with the support provided.

Pre-Screening and Video Review:

- In-prison engagement is encouraged, where potential participants are asked to watch an informational video about the program while still incarcerated. This helps applicants gain a clear understanding of the program and its expectations before applying.
- Word-of-mouth recommendations within NDCS are crucial, and case workers and other incarcerated individuals often promote the program to eligible individuals. Building trust and connections with incarcerated individuals is key to recruiting appropriate candidates.

Application Submission and Phone Interview:

- An application is submitted by the prospective participant to Mr. Reilly. While the application is helpful, Shane places more emphasis on the phone interview to determine suitability for the program.
- After the application is submitted, the reentry coordinator informs Mr. Reilly about the applicant and sets up a time for the phone interview.
- The applicant calls Mr. Reilly at the pre-determined time.
- During the phone interview, eligibility is determined, as Mr. Reilly discusses the applicant's background, motivation, and readiness for the program.

Criminal History and Risk Assessment:

- Sex offenders are automatically excluded from the program due to safety concerns and the specific needs of this population. NDCS reentry staff will alert Mr. Reilly if any applicants have a history of sexual behaviors, and he will review their file for more information.
- All other applicants are considered on a case-by-case basis, with the understanding that the program is open to individuals with a broad range of backgrounds.

Final Determination and Notification:

- After the phone interview and background review, Mr. Reilly typically rejects very few applicants. The final decision about eligibility is based on the applicant's readiness, criminal history, and overall compatibility with the program's goals.
- Once accepted, applicants are provided with next steps and orientation information. If not accepted, they may be referred to other programs better suited to their needs.

Other Notes About Screening:

- Mr. Reilly has noted the need for a better referral process and has contracted with a University of Nebraska Omaha, School of Criminology and Criminal Justice professor to develop a more standardized and helpful process.
- Furthermore, Mr. Reilly believes targeting specific facilities like Omaha Correctional Center (OCC), Reception and Treatment Center (RTC), and Tecumseh State Correctional Institution would help improve program admission numbers.

Attendance to scheduled meetings/contact with parole officer is required (NGU has one designated parole officer for participants).

Relapse and Violation of Program Rules:

- Relapse: We recognize that relapse can be a normal part of the recovery process for individuals with substance use disorders. At the same time, relapse offers an opportunity to learn, adjust, and grow. Because maintaining a safe and supportive environment is essential, NGU and parole have established the following policy for relapses that occur while you are in the program:
 - First relapse: You may be given a second chance to remain the program, depending on the circumstances and your willingness to engage in recovery.
 - Second relapse: You will be immediately removed from the program—no exceptions. However, you are still required to return to NGU to participate in Intensive Outpatient Programming (IOP) and individual counseling sessions.
- Violation of Rules: Breaking program rules may result in the loss of passes, loss of visiting privileges, additional counseling, or program termination.

9. Program Expectations

Participants of the Reentry Program are expected to participate fully in the program, which is designed to support their successful reintegration into society. The following are the core program components that outline the expectations of participants:

10. Partnerships and Community Support

The Never Give Up Transitional Living program has connected with several Omaha community organizations, two of which have already committed to donating to the program, including:

- Sherwood Foundation
- Omaha Community Foundation

The Never Give Up Transitional Living program does not currently have funding from parole or other criminal justice agencies. However, the program aims to continue its previous partnership with Nebraska Parole by securing a parole contract, replicating the previous arrangement established with 50th Street Landing under Mr. Reilly's leadership. The contract would be for a duration of 84 days per participant, at a rate of $90 per day per individual.

Furthermore, the Never Give Up Transitional Living program maintains strong partnerships with employers in the Omaha, Nebraska area, facilitating participants' access to high-quality employment opportunities during their involvement in the program.

11. Outcomes and Program Success

Program completion is based on two categories—successful and unsuccessful—defined as:

Successful Program Completion

- Participants must complete the required 84 days in the program, establish a comprehensive plan for continued success, commit to a foundation of recovery (e.g., AA, NA, church), and maintain a record free of relapses, arrests or violations, or significant setbacks during their participation.

Unsuccessful Program Completion

- Determinations regarding unsuccessful completion are typically made by the program leadership. Participants will be removed for a second relapse and may be removed from the program for serious infractions of program expectations.
- On rare occasions, Mr. Reilly makes the sole determination to remove a participant from the program (e.g., the use of Synthetic Cannabinoids [Spice/K2] is an automatic removal from the program) without warning.
- On these occasions, Mr. Reilly must report to the participants' parole officer, as step one of parole is typically to complete transitional living.

The overall success of the Never Give Up Transitional Living program will be measured by:

- Employment: Percent of participants securing jobs and duration of employment
- Maintain Sobriety: Urinalysis test results, parole technical violations, and self-reports
- Develop Healthy Coping Skills: Self-report
- Build and Maintain Positive Relationships: Self-report
- Financial Literacy: Documentation of a checking and savings account
- Community Belonging: Self-report
- Life Skills: Self-report
- Plan for Success After Program: Documentation and self-report
- Recidivism Rate: Percent of participants rearrested, reconvicted, and/or returning to prison within three years of release
- Successful Program Completion: Graduation from the program

12. Staffing and Ongoing Support

13. Conclusion

The Never Give Up Transitional Living program offers a structured, supportive environment for individuals transitioning from incarceration in the Nebraska Department of Correctional Services. By combining quality employment, stable housing, drug and alcohol treatment, dialectical behavior therapy, life skills, and (re)establishing a community support network, the Never Give Up Transitional Living program is committed to helping individuals rebuild their lives and successfully reintegrate into society. Additionally, by having a director with lived experience, Mr. Reilly “gets it” and can relate to the men in the program in a way unlike others who do not have such experiences.
